

Dave Daugherty

Dave Daugherty has been a successful business executive and entrepreneur for more than 25 years and has coached and consulted high-end orthodontic practices for 15 years. As an organizational consultant and executive coach to clients nationwide, he specializes in leadership and team development, behavior awareness, transitional dynamics and accelerated personal performance.

Dave graduated from Florida State University with a degree in Accounting (Finance) and worked in management for 12 years in the energy industry. He first discovered his executive coaching skills when the energy company he worked for was sold and he had the opportunity to coach transitioning senior executives who were leaving the company.

Dave realized he had expertise and insight into the inner drives of people in business and team dynamics, so, even though he was completely unknown in the industry, he decided to open his own consulting practice. Rather than an industry-specific focus, Dave's consulting and coaching have focused on the behavioral and developmental aspects of executives and their management teams to produce exceptional results. The business thrived for 18 years, as Dave worked with Fortune 10 to Fortune 1000 companies in a whole array of industries from energy to healthcare to non-profits to financial institutions. Today, he translates his corporate coaching skills and best practices to helping orthodontic and medical practices succeed.

As an executive coach to senior executives, physicians and their staff, Dave's style is incisive, enthusiastic and inspiring. He focuses on empowering individuals to be more effective teams, linking a clear understanding of goals for the business and leveraging the internal dynamics of human behavior to achieve those goals. With penetrating questions and a high degree of interactivity, Dave's process is behavioral-based but focused on producing real-time business results. Straightforward but compassionate, Dave's intuition and experience help him get to the heart of issues very quickly to produce desired results.

Author of "Your Family Business," Dave has trained extensively in masterful leadership and communication strategies to improve relationships between people. He is a member of Management Research Group International Network and is a Birkman International Consultant.

Dave's business-oriented background, combined with Terry's intensive orthodontic background, make Daugherty Consulting the perfect choice for those who want a practice that excels to new heights.
